i. Workshop Group (1)

Activities

Three questions were discussed. "What are the problems of the existing waterfront?" , "What is your ideal waterfront?" and "How do we get there? " After identifying the problems and solutions, a site visit was made to the Tsim Sha Tsui waterfront. Tourists were interviewed for comments about the waterfront.

Report by group members

The workshop is interesting and time well-spent. Problems and solutions are identified. Accessibility is a problem. There should be separate groups for professionals and the general public. Talking to the people is a good activity. Many ideas are gathered only in that particular hour. Therefore, public involvement is important and there should be more public engagement.
